

SHARK IN A TAXI EXCITES PARK ROW

Franklin Statue Ichthyologists
Debate Species of Stuffed Sea Tiger.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—Ichthyologists who gossip around the Franklin statue in Printing House Square every afternoon had a rare chance for disputation and display of learning yesterday. A taxicab wherein reposed a stuffed shark drove into their midst and stayed there until a policeman ruled that even a shark out for a taxi ride could not be permitted to stop the ordinary traffic of Nassau street and Park Row.

Some said it was a blue nose shark, others a white belly. This matter could not be settled offhand, as the taxidermist who mounted the prodigy apparently had given it a coat of blue paint from nose to tail. One expert insisted it was only a horse mackerel, but he was laughed down. A lame man who stood beside the taxicab handing out cards confided to a reporter for the Sun that he'd been hanged if he knew what kind of a shark it was, but anyway, it was a shark and was caught a few days ago off Fort Jefferson, L. I.

Fish Had Shunk Six Inches.
After the policeman had exited the taxicab down Spruce street, the proprietor of the fish came out of a nearby cafe and told his assistant, the lame man, that Commodore Schuyler Van Rensselaer, who had been visiting him from Clason Point, caught it off Sheepshead Bay.

The proprietor, F. Kopper, whipped out a six-inch ruler and measuring the prize announced it was 6 feet 6 inches long, which seemed to be true. He stated regretfully that it was 7 feet at the moment of its demise, but had shunk in the process of mounting. A sunburned man squinted into the taxi and remarked:

"That ain't no shark. I seen many a one, and its mouth is too far furred. A shark's mouth is so far back he has to turn upside down to bite. This here fish could bite you without turning over."

The lame man snorted.

"Take a look at its teeth," said he. "Double rows. That makes it a shark. Don't it, my friend? But my friend here for argument. You win no matter what you say. I'm sorry all the prizes have been given out."

But the skeptic refused to look and went away, muttering:

Stranger Finds "Aquarium."
Another man, whose walk was unsteady, held on to the taxicab while he surveyed the contents.

"Is that really a shark?" he demanded.

"It is," said F. Kopper.

"A man eater?"

"Dead or alive?"

"Alive," replied F. Kopper. "This is the Aquarium."

"Thank God," said the teetering stranger. "Been walking 'round 'round 'round 'round all afternoon 'n no do to get in. Good night."

He opened the door of the taxicab and was about to seek repose beside F. Kopper's fish when Mr. Kopper grabbed him and propelled him gently in the direction of William street. Then Mr. Kopper and the lame man got in besides the chauffeur, the back of whose neck rubbed the tip of the shark's nose, and drove away.

First Mr. Kopper said it was no secret that his shark was going to be exhibited at the Harlem Amusement Palace.

SMUGGLED PARCEL HIDDEN IN SHIP BAR

Custom House Witness Reveals
Methods Used in Scheme to Get Mail to Germany.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—In testimony before Custom House officials Helmar C. S. Jorgensen, bartender on board a Norwegian steamship, threw interesting light on the efforts of persons who are alleged to have smuggled mail and men to Germany. He declared that Frederick Uffelman, now under arrest on the charge of smuggling jewels from Germany to this country—who incidentally is not an employee of the Scandinavian-American line traveling between this country and Norway—gave him $25 to take a parcel.

The parcel, which is supposed to have contained official letters for Germany, is said to have escaped the eyes of the British searchers, through the fact that Jorgensen concealed it behind the bar on board the vessel.

He said that two men were so anxious for him to take a suit case to the other side that they called at his home. His mother, he said, told him that they had been to see him and declared that she did not like the looks of the men and warned him not to have any dealings with them. He said that he was constantly watched and the men under arrest—Uffelman and Hans Edward Thompson—seemed most eager that he should make a regular practice of carrying mail aboard the steamship surreptitiously.

Jorgensen also gave the Federal authorities additional names of men interested in the smuggling of mail matter to Germany.

John E. Walker, Assistant United States attorney, who has charge of the case, further questioned Assistant Uffelman, who was held on Thursday at the custom house on several occasions for having delivered letters intended for Germany to one of the crew of a Norwegian steamship. It is understood that the Federal authorities permitted the witnesses, stewards aboard the Christiania, to leave the city aboard that vessel, their depositions having been taken the previous day.

Thompson and Uffelman, unable to obtain bail on the jewelry smuggling charge, are still in the Tombs.

3 SLAVE REFUGEES CAUGHT IN BOSTON

Trio, Wanted in New York Investigation, Rounded Up by Prosecutor.

BOSTON, Sept. 2.—Running themselves in Reverse Road they must have been in New York to give information helpful in the white slave investigation were found today by agents who accompanied James E. Smith of District Attorney Swann's staff. Frightened by a threat that indictments would bring them back if they did not return voluntarily the men promised to report to Assistant District Attorney Smith in his Manhattan office before next Wednesday.

In the hunting party with the New York prosecutor were a stool pigeon from New York, Detective McGlynn of the squad of Honest Dan Costigan John Shick, arrested in Dwight street, Boston, last night and the woman who posed as his wife. Smith did not take the local police into his confidence because he distrusted them.

When the party reached the beach in an automobile Smith remained in the car while the others hunted the Manhattan refugees. They were not long in finding their quarry. "John the Wop," Abe Kopke and another whose name is withheld for the present. The sought ones greeted the New York visitors with effusion. At first they balked at the prospect of returning, but were persuaded when they saw Smith.

On their way to the station traffic was blocked near South station. Some one in the street crowd recognized the Shicks and raised the cry that "the King and Queen of the White Slaves" were on their way back to New York. Thousands surrounded the car and asked a question which the police broke up after "movie" operators and camera men had taken pictures.

Smith and his investigators departed for Providence, where they expect to find others wanted for their part in the white slave traffic. They expect to find when District Attorney Swann and the New York police first began the investigation.

Honest Girl Gets Lot
For Returning Diamond
CINCINNATI, Ohio, Sept. 2.—Beatrice Bunning, fourteen years old, of South Fort Thomas, Ky., has been presented with a lot 50x150 feet by Blair P. Wilson, of Huntington, W. Va., capitalist.

Beatrice was blackberry picking when she found what she thought was a piece of glass. She saw Wilson inspecting some grading and showed the "glass" to him. The instant Wilson saw the "glass" he felt his life. He found his diamond stud valued at $875 missing. "I've lost my diamond; let me see what you found," he said.

"I am a lucky man to get it back so quickly, and you are a lucky girl to find it," he said to Miss Bunning. "I'm going to give you one of these lots."

Paperhangers Get Boost.
The thirty-two paper hanging shops in the District that employ union men have granted their employees a 50-cent increase in pay, according to an announcement by officers of Paperhangers' Local No. 43. With the 50-cent union wage scale in the District is now $4.50 a day.

RICH INSANE PATIENTS COSTLY TO STATE

Connecticut Can Collect But
$3.75 Per Week From Wealthy Public Charges.

MIDDLETOWN, Conn., Sept. 2.—The irony of fate is certainly exemplified within the walls of the Connecticut Hospital for the Insane here, where over 2,500 patients are being ministered to for minds diseased. The outside public hears nothing of much which would read like the most improbable fairy story, if only it were told.

For example, there is a sad-looking, middle-aged woman among the patients whose brain was turned by troubles and privations. She had not been a patient here many years when a relative died, leaving her over $100,000. She amuses herself day after day playing with bits of colored paper and string, while out in the busy world a dozen relatives are waiting impatiently to share the substantial legacy when she shall have breathed her last.

Nearly a score of distant cousins inquire with genuine anxiety from time to time as to the condition of a man patient who steps softly about in cheap carpet slippers, wears threadbare clothes and lets his hair and beard grow, because he fancies it would cost too much to get trimmed and shaved and decently clad, as once he was. He has become possessed of the mania that unless he economizes he will end his days in the poorhouse. Yet that man has the tidy sum of $80,000, which is being cared for by a conservator.

In these and similar cases, when these poor crazed mortals shall have shut their eyes forever, distant relatives will benefit by the huge sums which they will leave, while the State of Connecticut, which has been caring for them for years and years, perhaps, is able to collect from those persons of large means but the trifling sum of $3.75 a week. A patient may live for months, but the State institution cannot take it.

PLOWING CONTESTS POPULAR IN CANADA
CALGARY, Canada, Sept. 2.—The pioneer days of the American colonies, when cheerful neighbors helped build houses at "barn building," "house raising" and "hogging" contests, have reappeared in the Canadian grain belt with a new twist.

Plowing contests are the latest. Contests of the sort will become a popular and regular incident in the country life of the Calgary district. If the first of its kind, just held, is a criterion of popularity.

This was at Osborne E. Brown's big farm and there were nine varieties of contests. The prizes for the best straight-line plow, the fastest down a row and back, the open match to plow an acre in three hours, the best plowman with a time deadline and opportunities for the youngsters to show what they could do when they put their hands to the plow.
